

The Moors Golf Club — an Arthur Hills Creation

“The Moors has always been a favorite course of mine. The course has an exceptional variety of holes due to the wide range of terrain. Sandy uplands, forests on part of the back nine, and the dramatic marsh all contribute to the course.

The strategy of the individual holes is always apparent. There are choices hole after hole. And those choices make the course challenging, yet playable for the spectrum of golfers.

And the final plus is the wonderful relationship we have had for 20 years with Joe Gesmundo and everyone else connected to The Moors.”

Sincerely,
Arthur Hills

The name Arthur Hills has become well recognized in the world of golf. To date, there are more than 150 Arthur Hills designed courses in the United States alone. Hills, a past president of the American Society of Golf Course Architects, has designed golf courses for many different golf course communities, private country clubs, resorts, and public golf developments. His experience, knowledge of the design process, and responsiveness to the client’s needs have contributed greatly to their overall success.

Steve Forrest, a Principal in the firm along with Arthur Hills, is a registered landscape architect and has been a member of the American Society of Golf Course Architects since 1985. He has collaborated in the design of many new courses and has also worked with a number of renovation projects. His design approach, which has been shaped by the “traditionalist” philosophy of Arthur Hills, is to create a challenging, yet playable course that highlights the beauty and natural features of a given site.

The firm has also been called upon to refine or renovate more than 100 courses, including renowned clubs like Oakmont, Inverness, and Oakland Hills. Hills was instrumental in guiding Oakmont and Oakland Hills through several renovation improvements in preparation for their respective U.S. Open Championships in 1994 and 1996. He played a similar role with Inverness Club in preparation for the 1998 PGA Championship.

The Longaberger Golf Club (Hanover, OH) opened in 1999 and in its first year hosted a Shell Wonderful World of Golf match. Other new designs recently opened include Gaillardia Golf and Country Club (Oklahoma City, OK), Lowes Island Club-River Course (Sterling, VA) and Stonewall Orchard Golf Club (Grayslake, IL). Bay Harbor Golf Club (Petosky, MI) was ranked #8 in Golf Magazine’s Top 100 Public Courses after being open for only one year. In 1998, Bay Harbor hosted a Shell Wonderful World of Golf match between Phil Mickelson and Tom Lehman.

In 1995, Collier’s Reserve Golf Club (Naples, FL) became the first course in the world to receive Audubon International’s “Cooperative Sanctuary Signature” status. Also working in conjunction with Audubon International, the Oitavos Golfe Clube (near Lisbon, Portugal) will become Europe’s first Audubon “Gold Signature” golf course.

In 1992, Golf Digest honored Arthur Hills by naming The Golf Club of Georgia (Atlanta) and Harbour Pointe Golf Club (Seattle) as the “Best New Private” and “Best New Public” courses of the year. It was the first time a single architect captured both awards in the same year.

Other courses that have received special national acclaim include Hyatt Regency Hill Country Resort (San Antonio, TX), Arthur Hills Course at Palmetto Hall Plantation (Hilton Head Island, SC), Bonita Bay Club (Naples, FL), Bighorn Golf Club (Palm Desert, CA), Half Moon Bay Golf Links (Half Moon Bay, CA), El Conquistador Resort (Las Croabas, Puerto Rico), The Sanctuary Golf Club (Sanibel Island, FL) and Chaska Town Course (Chaska, MN). Arthur Hills/Steve Forrest and Associates’ reputation rests on their ability to design courses that are playable yet challenging, while created with an overriding sense of environmental sensitivity.

